PROGRESS MADE ON HIGHWAY NO. 173.

The committee from Hondo which joined other delegations from various interested points in appearing before the State Highway Commission at Austin last Monday in behalf of Highway No. 173, Hondo to Jourdan via Devine, returned very much pleased with the courteous hearing they received and encouraged over the progress made towards securing the desired highway.
Two miles out of Jourdan, towards Devine and four miles out of Devine towards Hondo were ordered constructed as soon as funds are available out of the 1938 apportionment of the "farm to market" road funds. This definitely assures the ultimate construction of the entire section of road linking Highway No. 3 from the west at Hondo with Highway No. 9 at Jourdan and leading toward the south and deep water at Corpus Christi.
Besides County Judge Arthur H. Rothe and the entire Commissioners' Court, Alfred A. Bader, Ben Koch, Herman J. Bippert and Mr. Hardcastle, others going from Hondo were Prof. J. G. Barry, Sheriff Chas. J. Schuchle, Treasurer O. J. Bader, F. X. Vance, Felix Batot, Mr. Knute and N. C. Johnson. A delegation of eight from Devine, four from Jourdan and twelve from Corpus Christi were also present.
The Corpus Christi delegation made a most forceful presentation to the Commission of the importance of this link between these two important highways, No. 3 and No. 9. They illustrated by means of maps and graphs the saving in distance to and from deep water and the farms, and the consequent saving of time and money was graphically shown. It will be an important line of traffic from the vast ranching empire to the northwest of Corpus Christi for handling exports and imports through its deep water port, and when completed will influence the towns affected and the country traversed more vitally, possibly, than did the railroads in the pioneering days of their construction.
Judge Rothe informs this paper that the matter of widening Highway No. 3 through Hondo was not discussed at this meeting, it having been definitely settled that the widening will be done. This work will be done by men of the Maintenance Division and is expected to begin soon, though the definite time is not yet known.
TO ENTERTAIN TEACHERS.
A special called meeting of the Dinner Club of the Hondo Chamber of Commerce will be held at the Hondo Fair Grounds auditorium next Tuesday night, September 28th, honoring the faculty of the Hondo public schools. The meeting is called for the Fair Grounds because no other building large enough to accommodate the crowd expected is available.
The first feature of the evening will be the regular dinner at 7:45, which will be served to the members present, each member's lady guest and the Club's honorees, the teachers of the town.
The committee is seeking the services of a special orator for the occasion but up to the hour of going to press no one had been announced.
An entertainment program to follow these events and close the meeting is under the personal direction of Mrs. C. D. Sadler, and these who have enjoyed previous programs under her direction know they will be well entertained.
Messrs. W. H. Case, Frank X. Vance and Henry Z. Windrow have charge of the general arrangements, and any member of the Chamber of Commerce who has joined the Dinner Club, or who joins by that date, is eligible to attend and bring a lady guest. To join one only needs to see the Secretary, Will Crow, and pay the first three months' dues, which are $1.50.
The club meets regularly in a monthly dinner each Tuesday night before the second Wednesday of the month.

NEW FOUNTAIN MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The New Fountain Missionary Society held its meeting in the home of Mrs. Jacob Schweers, on September 15th, with twelve members and two guests present.
Mrs. Robt. Riff acted as leader in the absence of Mrs. Robt. Paine.
The Kingdom of God is the ultimate order for human living in all its phases. It demands conversion both of the soul and of the social system, for evil can be in the individual will, it can be in the collective will. Shall we pick up the wounded in war, or strike at the war system? Shall we rescue individual drunkards or strike at the liquor traffic? Obviously the answer is that we must do both.
The Kingdom of God on earth demands a thorough going renovation of the sum total of life in all its aspects. were words read by the leader. Quiet music was rendered by Mrs. Hy. C. Muennink, followed by a prayer by Mrs. A. B. Brucks.
A short business session was held. Hymn, "In Christ There is no East or West" was sung. "Social Service in the Rural Church" was given by Mrs. Theo. G. Wiemers. "Forty Years a Cook", a story by a colored cook, was given by Mrs. Stiegler. Mrs. Frank Muennink gave us a story also.
Call to worship was read by the leader with response by the members.
The remainder of the program was as follows:
Hymn, "Where Cross the Crowded Ways of Life".
Responsive reading.
Prayer by the leader.
Hymn: "Stand Up! Stand Up for Jesus!"
Meditation: "The Earliest Missionary Letters", by Mrs. C. F. Schweers. 1 Cor. 1:1-18 was read for the Scripture reading by the leader.
After the meeting the hostess served a delicious plate lunch.

MISS BOON HONORED.

Miss Lucille Boon, the bride-elect of Mr. George Newsom of Pearsall, was complimented Saturday afternoon at a tea given by a group of her friends at the home of Mrs. Barnitz Carle.
The reception rooms were decorated with vases of deep pink crepe myrtle and floor baskets of pink roses and regina corona. Receiving with Mrs. Carle and the honoree were Mrs. Earl Boon, the latter's mother, and Mrs. J. F. Newsom of Pearsall, mother of Miss Boon's fiancé. The other members of the house party, Mesdames C. R. Davis, John Finger, A. H. Schweers, James Bailey, Ray Worley, and Robert Kollman and Miss Elta Leinweber alternated in keeping the bride's book, greeting the guests and presiding at the refreshment board.
The dining table laid with a white cut work cloth held as a centerpiece a silver bowl of pink radiance roses, pink queen's crown and a deeper rose crepe myrtle, and was lighted by pink tapers in branched silver candelabra. The chosen blossoms also adorned the buffet and mantel in the dining room. Tea dainties of tipsy pudding iced in white and embossed with pink sugar-spun queen's crown, salted nuts and coffee were served.
In addition to the tea Miss Boon was honored with a miscellaneous shower of handsome gifts, which were on display at the time.
The receiving hours were marked by a delightful musicale featuring the voices of Mrs. Volney Boon, Mrs. August Finger, Mrs. R. C. Rath, Mrs. Arnold Newsom, Mrs. O. A. Fly and Mrs. R. W. Gaines. Miss Frances Finger, Mrs. Boon and Mrs. Newsom were the piano accompanists.
The honoree's gown was a beautiful creation of sheer black lace over pale pink chiffon, a small cape of the lace forming the top of the bodice, and the full skirt gathered at the waistline giving a drindla effect very becoming to the slender bride-to-be. Her corsage was of shaded pink gladioluses.
Mrs. Carle's afternoon frock was of flowered chiffon in deep rich shades, with which she wore a corsage of white gladioluses.
Mrs. Boon wore a smart afternoon model of ivory crepe and her flowers were salmon pink gladioluses.
Mrs. Newsom's costume was of black chiffon and her corsage was of white gladioluses.
The personnel included about 100 friends of the honoree.
ST. PAUL'S LUTHERAN CHURCH.
Harvest time—it is a season that lifts the spirit upward, that makes the heart swell with a song, that gladdens the world. For some it is cotton and corn and for others oats and wheat and alfalfa and cane. Harvest time, after the planting and the cultivating are long past; after the germination and the growth and the development of the grain until it has matured. The gradual steps in nature are completed and the time for accounting is at hand, when the yield is brought in. What has it amounted to? For some a disappointment, for others a surprise that it is as great, for still others dissatisfaction: it might have been better. Whatever the yield, there is someone who has fared much worse than you. There are some who did not need the combine—their crop was a total loss. The winds and dust whipped the promising wheat out of the ground, or the grasshopper and the drought wrought havoc with the ripening grain. You are much better off, and have reasons for, harvest of thanksgiving.
"The fields are white unto the harvest." This is another harvest, of which our Master speaks—a harvest of souls. "Pray ye the Lord of the harvest, that He send forth laborers into His harvest." He, too, wants to plant the seed into hearts that are bought with a price. He too wants to see germination and growth and development. He too wants maturity of faith and righteous life, so that He may rejoice over the sinners that repent and are brought into the eternal granaries. Come to the field of labor, the Church, and come often. Your prayers, your presence, your soul are wanted.
Service Sunday, October 3, English at 10:30 A. M. "My Church and Her Program" is the theme for the next quarter with sub-topic "My Church and Her Mission" for October. We desire very much a full cooperation on the part of the membership. On October 10 the pastor will be the mission speaker in San Antonio.

GOOD BUSINESS.
By Clayton Rand.
There are those who would no more go to their stores with patched pants than they would attend church with dirt behind their ears, who still use printed forms fit only for the waste basket.
Why a business man will drive a good car, smoke the best cigars, put on a bold front at his bank, and then shop for the cheapest, shoddiest printing is beyond the understanding even of an organ-grinder.
One's business pride is as much exposed by his letter-head or printed statement as his character is revealed by his words or personal appearance.
The poorest economy known to a going concern is punk-printing, smeared all over with the evident fact that the job finally went to the lowest bidder.

IF AND WHEN.
If and when Hondo incorporates here is an example for her to emulate.
Huntingburg, Ind., Sept. 18.—Death is still as sure as ever in Huntingburg, but this Southern Indiana city of 3500 belying the rest of the adage, has managed to do away with taxes.
Next year, for the fifth year straight, Huntingburg residents will pay no city taxes on real or personal property.
Hoosier sports writers in the wind-up of a stirring basket ball season last spring watched the local team fight its way to the state semi-finals and labeled the community "Happy Huntingburg".
Mayor August F. Becker said Saturday the city council is bound to see that the place lives up to that title. And, he added: "It's an axiom among city fathers everywhere that nothing keeps John G. Public happy like a tax bill with no figures on it."
So when tax rates were set this summer, the council looked at the city's books, scratched its collective head and decided once again it could write after "city taxes" on the DuBois county tax abstract:
"None."
Mayor Becker told how Huntingburg's happy situation came about:
"The city has its own light and water plant. The plant is paid for. Huntingburg is in good shape financially and can borrow money whenever it pleases. It needs no large reserve."
"So for the last four years officials have held back only a small part of the earnings of the light and water plant and used the rest to run the city and make improvements."
"This year the city laid a half mile of new water mains and bought $60,000 worth of new equipment for the plant. The mains were paid for entirely out of earnings. Of the cost of machinery, $40,000 came from earnings and the remaining $20,000 from a bond issue."
Change this to water supply and sewerage disposal plants and we are with you!

WHAT DO YOU THINK?
Just suppose it should be announced from Washington that the next session of Congress would devote itself to studying ways and means to reduce the present extravagant cost of government;
That it would adjust, reduce or eliminate special, punitive or class taxation that now hampers or discourages business—such as the capital gain and losses clause and the tax on corporation surpluses;
That it would adopt a strong and definite policy that would protect the rights of the worker, as well as the rights of the factory owner and the public;
That it would use all powers of the government to see that workmen or employees, union or non-union, were protected in their jobs and operations, and that infringers on their rights would suffer the full penalties of law enforcement;
That it would discontinue its present program of duplicating existing power facilities and the expenditure of hundreds of millions of dollars to provide an unnecessary competitive service against a private industry

The WEEKLY CONSTITUTIONAL
by MAX BERNIS
Our Balance-Wheel
How do our Courts provide a safeguard for the people and the government?
In his book on Constitutional Government, Woodrow Wilson says: "Our courts are the balance-wheel of our whole constitutional system, and ours is the only constitutional system so balanced and controlled. Other constitutional systems lack complete poise and certainty of operation because they lack the support and interpretation of authoritative, indisputable courts of law."
"It is clear beyond all need of exposition that for the definite maintenance of constitutional understandings it is indispensable, alike for the preservation of the individual, and for the preservation of the integrity of the powers of the Government, that there should be some non-political forum in which these understandings can be impartially debated and determined. That forum our courts supply."
The constitutional powers of the courts," concludes Wilson, "constitute the ultimate safeguard alike of individual privilege and governmental prerogative. It is in this sense that our judiciary is the balance-wheel of our entire system."

There is a large pavilion on the property, where dances and numerous gatherings are held and, altogether, is a very attractive piece of property.

"Just now, we are merely buying the property," said Mr. Hans, "but in time we will begin to improve same and in a few years we hope to have the most popular resort on the river." PUBLIC SCHOOL NEWS ITEMS FROM THE OWL.

SECOND GAME OF THE SEASON TO BE PLAYED ON HOME FIELD

The Hondo Owls meet the Texas Military Institute Panthers at 3:30 P. M. on Barry Field, Friday the 24th, in the second football game of the season. The game will be the first of the 1938 season to be played on the home field.

The last time that Hondo and T. M. I. played was in 1934, the Owls being victorious by a score of 6 to 0. The Panthers usually have a heavy, well-trained team and will pluck many an owl feather if the Owls do not show a better brand of football than they did in the game with Charlotte. With that first game over, the Owls ought to improve rapidly in the weeks to come, and play much better football.

T. M. I. will bring part of the cadets which means a colorful game as far as spectators are concerned. The teams will provide plenty of color during the game.

The Pep Squad is planning a stunt for the time out at the half and will be diked out in new uniforms. The town should support the team, and with the entire school out, there should be a large crowd.

Come out and support the Owls and see some football that will be worthy of your attendance.

NIGHT GAME ON DIRT FIELD SLOWS DOWN THE OWLS

The Hondo Owls took a closely fought game from the Charlotte Chaparrals last Saturday night by a 6 to 0 score.

The Owls kicked off to the Chaparrals and after a fumble on the kick-off and a couple of line plays the Chaparrals punted to the Owls. Joel Abbott, safety man for the Owls, received the ball on the Owls 45-yard line and ran it back about 5 yards to the 50 from where the Owls began a drive that resulted in the only score of the game. Danie tried for the extra point but failed.

The Chaparrals missed their chance to score in the second quarter when the passer threw a poor pass to a man that was hiding out on the side line. The play went for a gain of about 15 yards.

The Chaparrals filled the air with passes the last half but only completed three of them, due to slips made by the receivers. The Owls made all of their gains with running plays. They threw three passes, but failed to complete any of them.

In the fourth quarter Capt. Rucker intercepted a Charlotte pass on the Charlotte 40-yd. line and ran it back about 8 yards. Hondo was deep in the Chaparrals territory when the game ended.

OWLS RECEIVE NEW EQUIPMENT

The Hondo Owls received some new equipment last week; mainly shoes and shoulder pads. The new equipment will come in handy for the Owls as the old shoes are about worn out and some of the shoulder pads are getting old and do not afford the boys much protection.

The shoes for the guards and back-field men are made of light canvas, so that the boys will have no excuse for not showing plenty of speed in the football games.

The shoulder pads are a bit heavier than the old ones but will afford much more protection for the players.

HARLINGEN DOWNS TECH.

The Harlingen High School football team, coached by C. M. "Dutch" Flory, defeated the San Antonio Tech team by a score of 12 to 0 last Friday the 17th.

The Cardinals, as the Harlingen team is called, although lighter, kept the ball in Tech's territory the greater part of the game. Coach Flory uses a system similar to the one used while he coached at Hondo. His Cardinals are on the spot in the valley district this year, and according to coach "Bobby" Canon, of Edinburg, Flory is due to have a winner.

HOME ECONOMICS CLASS PRESERVE PEARS.

Last week the second-year Home Economics girls canned, pickled, preserved, and conserved pears. From all reports they turned out fine. Believe it or not, some preserves were spilt on the stove and it was not the preserves burning as many outsiders guessed.

The girls have been discussing in class the achievements they hope to attain the first term. They will take up canning, serving dinners, and home nursing.

They hope to make good impressions of their work on the outsiders as well as those in the class. Those not taking H. E. are invited to come in and visit the laboratory at any time they choose and observe the way in which the laboratory is kept and the equipment, as well as the supply of books and current magazines.

The H. E. girls will attend the District meet some time in the fall.

JOURNALISM CLASS WILL HAVE PROJECT.

The Journalism Class of Hondo High School has decided to have as a project a map of Texas showing the towns from which the class will have gathered newspapers. The class gathers these newspapers to study in class.

The purpose of studying the newspapers of different towns is to acquaint the students with the different styles of writing, and to show the errors of the papers. If the project is finished before the year is over Miss Adams, the class instructor, may arrange to have a map of the United States made, showing the towns and states from which the class has newspapers. A file of the papers will be kept.

Don't forget our exceptional advantages for handling your real estate. Hondo Land Company.

INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENTS AT TERMINAL OF HIGHWAY 173.

Corpus Christi, Tex., Sept. 22.—Industrial activity which during recent months has made Corpus Christi one of the fastest growing cities in Texas will get another boost soon with the addition of at least four new industries in the community, according to recent announcements.

Three of the new industries are embraced in an expansive building program to be started by the General American Tank Storage Terminal Co., one of the largest oil and transportation concerns in the world, which has operated a tank farm in Corpus Christi for the past four years.

Permit for construction of a $50,000 refinery similar to those now operated on the company's tank farm here was issued last week, the new plant to be located on the Corpus Christi channel. The company also contemplates construction of a plant to build and repair tank cars, and a pre-cooling plant for vegetables and other perishable foodstuffs. Total investment in the properties has not been announced, but sources close to company officials say the new additions will approximate a million dollars.

Construction by the Texas Sea Foods, Inc., of a $100,000 quick-freezing plant, the purpose of which will be to frost foods to preserve them in the original, natural state for indefinite periods, is expected to get under way soon. The company has recently obtained a lease on a site for the plant at the ship channel. First production at the plant will probably be of oysters, shrimp and fish from the Gulf of Mexico, but it is expected that fruits and vegetables will be utilized later.

Plans for the construction of a gasoline plant in the Flour Bluff oil field, nine miles southeast of Corpus Christi, have been announced by the Humble Oil & Refining Co. and the Barnsdall Oil Co. Estimated total cost of the plant will be $300,000.00.

Contract for the erection of the plant has been let to Petroleum Engineering, Inc., of Tulsa, with construction to begin as soon as materials arrive here. The land has already been cleared.

The plant will be of a combination compression absorption type and will have a capacity of processing from 15 to 20 million cubic feet of gas daily. The yield from that amount of gas would be approximately 10,000 to 20,000 gallons of gasoline.

Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Fletcher of Santa Fe, New Mexico, spent several days here with Mrs. Fletcher's grandmother, Mrs. J. E. Allen. This is Mrs. Fletcher's first visit here since she was a small girl some eighteen years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher left Monday for Bandera where they spent the night with her father, Mr. W. C. Roench died at the age of 79 and Max Roench lived to the age of 83 years. They were both citizens of Bellville practically all time since their arrival in this country many years ago. P. T. A. HAS INITIAL MEETING.

The first meeting of the new 1937-1938 term of the Hondo Parent-Teacher Association was held last week in the high school auditorium. In addition to this initial session of the association, the executive committee was hostess to the faculty members in the annual teachers' reception.

The program for the day opened with a song by the Mother Singers, composed of about eight members of the P. T. A. Mrs. M. L. McDowell, past president, welcomed the new members and teachers, and a response was given by Miss Willie D. Fly, first grade teacher.

The main speaker for the afternoon was Supt. J. G. Barry, the theme of his formal address being based on "Guidance", the subject chosen for study by the club this year. In addition Mr. Barry thanked the P. T. A. for both past and future cooperation and presented valuable suggestions for the year's projects and aims of the P. T. A.

In the business session, minutes were read by the Secretary, Mrs. E. M. Nester. Mrs. Selby Woolls, the treasurer, reported a balance of $24.86 in the club's account. The Shirley Temple contest netted $9.75 of this. Reports on the program for the new year were given.

Mrs. Garland Martin tendered her resignation as president of the association. It was accepted, and Mrs. E. G. Pope, First Vice President, automatically took over the duties of President of the P. T. A. The nomination of Mrs. W. S. Highsmith for First Vice President to fill that vacancy was made and carried. The new president thanked those who took part on the program and asked for the wholehearted cooperation of the club in its future activities.

The Sixth Grade received the book award for having the best representation of mothers present at the meeting. It was voted, however, to henceforth give the room mother of the most representative grade a dollar each month to be spent as she sees fit. In case of a tie each room mother will be given a dollar.

The reception for the faculty was held in the school dining room. In the receiving line were the past presidents of the P. T. A. The refreshment table was laid with a lace cloth and had as an attractive centerpiece a crystal bowl of pink roses and pink candles in crystal holders. Refreshments of chicken salad, deviled eggs, wafers, and spiced tea were served. The Executive Committee, composed of Mesdames E. G. Pope, Arthur Ney, Andrew Bless, O. A. Fly, C. A. Van Fleet, Selby Woolls, N. C. Johnson, Emmett Nester and Earl Starnes, were the official hostesses.

MRS. FRANK X. BILHARTZ.

Mrs. Ida Bilhartz, aged 57 years, beloved wife of Frank X. Bilhartz, died Friday, September 17, 1937, at her home, 723 West Russell Place, San Antonio. The deceased is survived by her husband; two sons, Elliott and Norman Bilhartz; three brothers, Louis, Emil and Rudolph Garteiser; six sisters, Mrs. Mary Koch, Mrs. Regina Deckert, Mrs. Emil Schrieber, Mrs. Lena Langfeld and Mrs. Gus Batot; and two grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at the Riebe Undertaking Company chapel Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, followed by services at St. Mary's Catholic Church, Father M. J. Gilbert officiating. Pallbearers were nephews, Charles Langfeld, Charles Schrieber, John Deckert, Raymond Batot, Herman Garteiser, and Eddie Koch. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery.

This paper joins in sympathy for the bereaved husband, children and relatives.

QUIHI NOTES.

And he sold his birthright unto Jacob. Gen. 25: 33.

What does it matter? Little, to men like Esau, rash, unreflective, hot-headed, intemperate, sensual, infatuated with themselves and a trifling convenience, selling to the moment what no eternity can restore. What does it matter? "What profit shall this birthright do to me?" Children in South Africa used to play marbles on the street with diamonds bigger than marbles; the Indians bartered away Manhattan Island (300 square miles, New York stands there today), for a little more than $50 in trade. Sheer ignorance. With Esau, too? Does he know that with his birthright he is giving away the right of priesthood, inherent in the eldest line of the patriarch's family; and the promise of the inheritance of the Holy Land (about 10,000 sq. m.); and the promise that of his blood the Savior of the world should be born? Highest honors, most sacred duties, prospects beyond comparison, and to all this he bade farewell for an ordinary meal, "What fools these mortals be!" For there is a long chain of similar follies down to our days, and neither past days' experience nor present days' knowledge and education seem to offer a curative. Birthrights are bartered away daily for a pottage and less; high, sacred positions, obligations and duties for a pottage and less; high, sacred positions, obligations and duties are forfeited and forsaken by many a one who "seeks painted trifles and fantastic toys, and eagerly pursues imaginary joys." Absalom sells his birthright to the admirers of his hair and shapely face and glib persuasion and brings shame and sorrow upon the royal household and misery upon himself; and once upon a time there was an English king who shocked the finer sensibilities and royal prestige by selling out for a pretty face and a fling at romance. Judas sold his birthright of discipleship for a handful of silver; Benedict Arnold, his birthright of American fealty for a British colonelcy. How much has Israel retained of the racial birthright, the chosen of the Lord, after they had sacrificed the true Messiah for a national idol of their own fancy that will never come? And the civilized nations of today, with their birthright of a high mission of culture for the progress and advancement of the whole world, are they not mainly squandering time, talent and taxes in martial displays of intimidation and provocation for nationalistic prestige and superiority, "civilized in a few externals, but still savage at heart?" Esau, alas, has many followers that sell their sacred birthright of family, character, personality, nationality, and religion for a pottage or its paltry equivalent. What does it matter?

Mr. Geo. Heyen has been bothered a good deal with rheumatic troubles that gave rise to some anxiety at his age. And Roy Nietenhoefer has been nursing a very sore hand for several weeks. We were glad to find both well improved at our last visit.

And two young men of our intimate acquaintance have left this community and county. Marvin Grell has accepted a promising position at Del Rio and Raymond Saathoff is trying out the state of Arizona for a change. May the Lord prosper their ways.

With the consent of the vestrymen, acting in behalf of the congregation, the pastor is planning to enjoy a few days of vacation, beginning with next Monday, though several important affairs are pending, for which he shall not fail to return at the time. Watch the paper for further announcements, or better still, come to the next service and hear them.

The long-planned fence around the church property is taking shape fast now. Corr-puling and shelling was the order of the day so far and all else had to take a rear seat, but the councilmen now have banded together for a hard working quartet and with some outside help they are determined to bring matters to a fast wind-up. Their effort is appreciated all around. A fine example for many. Thanks.

Announcements for Sunday, September 26th: German service at New Fountain at 10 A. M.; Sunday school and Junior Bible class at 9; English service at 8 P. M. Be fair to the Lord on His day. Come.

The Wednesday Night Bridge Club had as hosts this week Mr. and Mrs. Earl Starnes, the personnel including Dr. and Mrs. H. J. Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Heath, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kollman, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Brucks and Dr. and Mrs. O. B. Taylor. Mrs. Meyer and Dr. Taylor won the club prizes for high scores. Punch was served as a refreshing iced drink.

CAR-LOT SHIPMENTS.

Car-lot shipments from Hondo for the week were as follows:

Fourteen cars of corn, 12 loading from Hondo and 2 from Dunlay. Other shipments were one car of broomcorn (shipped by buyer); three cars of livestock, three cars of used pipe, and one car of scrap iron.

Incoming car-lots were: One car of plaster-board, one car of lumber, three cars of gasoline, one car of kerosene, two cars of livestock and one car of oats.

Only four bales of cotton were shipped during the week. This brought the shipments for the season up to 468 bales. The cotton crop is practically all picked and some farmers are plowing up the stalks while others are pasturing the fields.

FARR-LOUIS FIGHT PICTURES BOOKED AT COLONIAL.

Again the management of the Colonial Theatre has "scooped" some of the country's largest theatres in offering pictures of the Tommy Farr-Joe Louis heavyweight championship fight staged at New York recently.

Next Wednesday and Thursday, those fight fans who have doubt in their minds as to the winner of the engagement will have an opportunity to settle the issue in their minds when the authentic pictures are shown at the Colonial Theatre.

In addition to this unusual attraction, the feature picture will be "The Hit Parade", with Frances Langford and Phil Regan. This is said to be "one swell" musical.

Manager Henry Merriman of the Leinweber Co. store reports the sale this week of several tractors. These useful farm implements are coming into pretty general use in this section, and their utility is proven by the amount of plowing already done despite the extremely hot weather that would have made it difficult to work one's teams.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Reilly accompanied their daughters, Misses Lela Grace and Jo Reilly, to San Marcos where the two girls entered Southwest Texas State Teachers College. Miss Lela Grace is a Sophomore, having attended Baylor University at Waco last year. Miss Jo is a 1937 graduate of Hondo High School and is enrolled as a Freshman.

Misses Ivy Jean and Merle McCall left Sunday for San Marcos where they entered Southwest Texas State Teachers College. Miss Ivy Jean attended school at Belton last year while her sister is a May graduate of Hondo High School. They are the daughters of Mrs. Berta McCall. They were accompanied to San Marcos by their uncle, Mr. Mit Peters.

Two future belles of Hondo have celebrated their birthdays recently. Little "Dooley" Crow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Crow observed her 6th birthday last week with a party at her home. Miss Patsy Lou Kollman, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kollman, is celebrating with a party in honor of her birthday at her home Thursday as we go to press.

In recent years, farmers have found that they can store corn, begari heads, and drouth stricken or frost bitten forage in trench silos. Now Aaron Reynolds, a 4-H club boy of McAllen, Hidalgo county, has demonstrated that carrots can be kept successfully as silage. Aaron noticed that each year many tons of unmarketable carrots in nearby fields went to waste. He needed additional feed for the beef calf he was feeding. He dug a small silo and filled it with carrots. When the silo was opened recently, the silage was perfect and had even retained its natural orange color. Valley farmers see in the club boy's experiment a means of storing a valuable farm product in an economical way.

Jack Shelton of College Station, Texas, president of the Jersey Cattle Club will preside at Springfield, Massachusetts, when the sixty-ninth annual meeting of the American Jersey Cattle Club convenes there on June 2nd. An election will be held to select a president to succeed Mr. Shelton who is retiring from the office, and four directors, Charles F. Michael, Bucyrus, Ohio; Rex F. Reed, Tupelo, Miss.; J. W. Ridgeway, San Antonio, Texas; and George W. Sisson, Jr., Potsdam, N. Y., whose terms expire. F. R. Angell, St. Paul, Minn., who is now vice-president, R. A. Patterson, Muskogee, Okla.; R. C. Tway, Louisville, Ky.; D. L. Wheelock, Clay Center, Kansas; B. S. Brigham, St. Albans, Vermont; L. B. Carter, Titusville, Pa.; Cameron Morrison, Charlotte, N. C.; and H. M. Wivell, Shelton, Wash.; will remain on the board of directors for a longer time.

"LARGE END UP" RULE SAVES HATCHING EGGS.

Hatching eggs to be hauled or shipped to the hatchery should be packed snugly into the case with the large end up, says Berley Winton in charge of the poultry office of the Bureau of Animal Industry, as hatching eggs are less likely to be broken when in this position than if they are packed with the small end up.

Each normal egg has an air cell at the large end, Mr. Winton explains, and it is necessary that the membrane separating the inner portion of the egg from the shell membrane neither be broken or shaken loose. Research at the National Agricultural Research Center, Beltsville, Md., has shown that eggs with tremulous air cells hatched only two-thirds as well as the eggs which had normal air cells. Packing the eggs with the large end up removes the pressure from the inner membrane.

Mr. Winton cautions that the egg case should never be placed on the bumper of an automobile, as the vibration at this point is possibly much greater than on the floor inside the car. If the hatching eggs are hauled in a wagon or truck the bed should be matted with straw, which serves as a shock absorber.

In the early part of the hatching season it is necessary to gather eggs often as hatching eggs should not be allowed to chill. They should be stored at a temperature ranging from 59 degrees F. to 60 degrees F. A frost-proof cellar or basement is usually a good place for storage.

Tests also have shown that hatching eggs should not be held longer than a week or ten days before delivery to the hatchery, Mr. Winton says. Held longer, the eggs decrease in hatchability.

PAST AND PRESENT.

Folk talked so much of good old times

I took a journey back
To see what called forth praise and chimes
Along the backward track.

I found the same old hardships there,
And some I never knew;
I found some things were good or fair,
And others much askew.

Some men were selfish, others kind;
Some quite intolerant—
Just as they are today, I find,
Here where my life is spent.

I found the gangsters of old days
(They called them robber bands)
Were quite as evil in their ways
As those of modern lands.

They didn't use machine-gun fire,
But then no "G-men" stood
Defending poor with those up higher
To serve the public good.

In olden days "loaf-givers" served
The bread of "charity"
To those from whom good fortunes
swerved,
Since might claimed wealth, you see.

All things considered, I should say
Our times are no mite worse—
And suit me better by the way,
From cradle to the hearse.

My concern is just that I Should do my little share
Supporting all who daily try
To make the present fair.
—LILLIAN M. SVENSON.

GET GOOD BABY CHICKS.

We farm flock owners have had a profitable year. The drouth in the West prevented the poultry raisers from overexpanding, and so prospects are good this year. But with a normal growing season and increasing employment, there is going to be a large increase in the number of chickens on farms this year. So in planning for the new laying flock we must start with better chicks, and with better chicks and with better feed and care raise a better and more profitable flock.

The most common mistake is to buy cheap chicks because they are cheap. We learn by experience that when the price is low there is usually something the matter with the goods. The cost of the baby chick is but a part of the cost of the layer, and it takes as much or more feed and care to produce a poor layer as a good one.—L. H. McKay in The Progressive Farmer.

THE ANTE-BELLUM BELLE.

Are you the Girl of Yesterday
 Who couldn't do a thing
 But dance and flirt and sew a seam;
 Or sigh, or weep, or sing?
 Fit alone for coquetry; for love and fancied fears—
 Coy in all your laughter; helpless in your tears.
 Just a bit of sweetness, so fragile
 and so fair—
 And useless as the perfume, in your dainty hair!

And yet, you fired the hearts of men
 Till steel struck steel—your lovers died in Sunrise Glen.
 Patriots were your sons—you tolled
 for them;
 Carded, wove and spun; sowed and
 reaped; faced battle line
 To save, to succor dying men—sires,
 mates and sons of thine—
 And yet, today, we meet you—hear the legend ring:

 MUSEUM WILL BE ENLARGED.

J. Marvin Hunter is planning to enlarge his Frontier Times Museum by early next year, adding 60 feet and thus giving the building a 100-foot frontage. In the center of the front will be a partial replica of the Alamo front, 20 feet wide, which will be the main entrance. The present front room will become the Charles room will be known as the Jesse

The sketch of the proposed build-

SELECT GOOD SOILS FOR THE ORCHARD.

By V. M. Couch.

There are many orchards that have been planted with but little thought to the adaptability of the soil for orchard purposes. It may not be generally known, but a fruit tree is as particular in its soil requirements as any crop grown on the farm. Take alfalfa for example, great care is usually exercised in locating a field for this crop, but still greater care should be used in the selection of a site for the orchard, because the expense of planting is greater than for alfalfa.

First to take into consideration is the depth of the soil. If it is not deep enough to allow extensive root growth, the tree is likely to become stunted, lacking in vitality and more susceptible to disease. A deep soil is also necessary to hold moisture enough to carry the trees through drouths. It is found that fruit on trees set in a shallow soil usually drops during long periods of dry weather. A deep soil is also necessary to supply the trees with the plant food needed for growth and production of fruit. Soils in which rock comes within ten feet of the surface should be used for orchard purposes.

Soils formed by glacial action and reworked by weather conditions are very desirable for orchards. Such soils are generally deep and consist of a mass of finely ground rock material rich in plant food, this soil is also loose, holds moisture and allows extensive development of the roots.

The best orchard soils are those with a sandy loam with heavier subsoil. Coarse subsoils should be avoided, as they will not hold sufficient moisture or plant food. The deep, porous limestone soils are highly valued for orchards and especially for apples. The deep, well drained soils on lower slopes are generally well adapted for orchards. The field planted for an orchard should

RAISE YOUR OWN FEED.

By V. M. Couch.

The farmer who buys very much of the feed for his live stock will not make the profit that he would if he fed home-grown feeds, or the greater part of it. It costs too much to ship and handle live stock feeds, and no one can afford to use feeds which have had freight charges, middle-men's profits and other expenses added to their original market value.
 For example, in the writer's own city, the G. L. F. has purchased a building site costing thousands of dollars and erected a very fine office building. Who will pay for all this?
 The farmers who buy feed of this organization of course.

It is not advisable to buy or raise pigs until you are prepared to feed and care for them economically.

With the average farmer there is no reason why he cannot arrange to do these things. Those who are not now prepared to handle hogs properly should get to work and make the necessary preparation and then buy a pure bred sire.

The barn lot with horses, mules or other stock is not a suitable place for a bear or a brood sow, nor is a lot where grass does not grow. Some give the hogs a run in the woods where the animals are expected to feed and grow on acorns, etc., but as a rule it does not work out satisfactory. A thing that costs nothing is generally worth the same.

When putting in crops, plan to raise enough of the right kind to feed the number of pigs raised and kept. It is not my advice for any man engaged in general farming to raise a large number of pigs, but just what he can feed and handle in an economical way. Consult your State Experiment Station for the best feeds and a balanced ration for feeding both pigs and breeding stock.
 Regular feeding on a suitable and well balanced ration with comfortable, but not necessarily expensive housing, with an opportunity for the needed exercise, do not require as much labor as that demanded by other live stock of comparative profits.

KLAN ISSUE DOGS BLACK

Newspapers Claim Proof He's Life Member . . . Fleet Stalks Submarine Pirates . . . Japs' Big Push Starts

Edward W. Pickard
SUMMARIZES THE WORLD'S WEEK
© Western Newspaper Union.

Fiery Cross Haunts Justice

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT suffered what was probably the most embarrassing period of his entire political career as the whole country stormed over the publication of what was claimed as documentary proof that Hugo L. Black, recently appointed a justice of the Supreme court, was and is a member of the Ku Klux Klan.

The series of articles, copyrighted by the North American Newspaper alliance and printed in the newspapers which subscribe to its service, included reproduction of Black's resignation from the hooded brotherhood, allegedly turned in to the organization in 1925 but never made known to the public or to the Klansmen in general. It also contained reproduction of the minutes of a Klan meeting in the following year at which Black was said to have become a life member and was given a gold "passport," one of the highest honors conferred by the order.

Implications of the revelations, if they are true, are manifold. President Roosevelt asserted that he had no knowledge that Black was a member of the Klan when the appointment was made. He refused to comment further until Black returned from Europe, where he was vacationing. Black, hounded for a statement by the press, went into seclusion in London and refused to confirm or deny the accusations.

Opposition to the administration lost no time in making political capital of the situation. Senators who had been marked for political extinction because they had dared to oppose the administration on the plan to add six new justices to the highest tribunal found it the finest kind of defense ammunition. They pointed out that the President, in his opportunity to appoint one new justice of the liberal character he desired, had appointed a man who, if it were true he belonged to the Klan, was incapable of administering impartial justice to Catholics, Jews and negroes. Other senators declared they never would have voted for his confirmation had they known he was a Klansman.

It was admitted that since Black had already taken his oath of office there might be no means of correcting the appointment other than by inducing him to resign. This the President might do, it was believed, if Black did not deny the charges upon his return to the United States.

Showdown on 'Sub' Piracy

GREAT BRITAIN and France were massing the greatest destroyer fleet ever operated in the Mediterranean sea, to police it and safeguard neutral shipping from attacks by "pirate" submarines, as a result of the agreement signed by nine powers at Nyon, near Geneva. The powers signatory to the pact also included Greece, Yugoslavia, Rumania, Bulgaria, Egypt and Russia.

Italy and Germany had refused to attend the conference when Russia publicly accused Italy of operating "pirate" submarines which sank two Russian ships, and threatened reprisals if Italy did not pay indemnity.

The principal provisions of the agreement, which Germany and Italy were invited to join, were:

1. Mediterranean shipping will be restricted to the regular ship lanes, which will be patrolled by French and British warships, in both the eastern and western stretches. If Italy agreed, she was to be allowed to patrol the Tyrrhenian sea.
2. Patrolling navies will attack and attempt to destroy any submarine which attacks merchant ships other than Spanish, without first giving passengers and crew opportunity to leave in lifeboats, as outlined in the 1936 London naval treaty.
3. Signatories expressly declare that they do not concede belligerent rights to either party in Spain.
4. Patrol ships arriving on the scene of an attack too late to prevent it will be authorized to attack any submarine in the vicinity, provided they are satisfied it is the guilty one.
5. These measures will be executed by the British and French fleets anywhere in the Mediterranean with the exception of the Adriatic. Eastern powers will protect neutral shipping in their territorial waters.
6. Signatories agree not to let any of their own submarines put to sea in the Mediterranean unless accompanied by a surface vessel, except in certain "exercise" zones.
7. Signatories will not permit foreign submarines in their waters unless in urgent distress or on the surface and accompanied.

It was plain that delegates knew that explosions might occur in half a dozen European capitals if their pact did not get into operation before there were any further attacks on shipping. They were embarrassed in conference by the Russian foreign commissar, Maxim Litvinoff, who insisted on naming Italy as the "pirate." Russia at first refused to sign, on the grounds that the second provision was no protection at all, merely requiring submarine commanders to be "gentlemanly" before sinking ships, and that it implied recognition of both Spanish parties as belligerents. Britain's Anthony Eden was reported to have convinced the signatory powers that it would be impossible for a submarine to sink a ship under those conditions.

China's German Strategy

JAPAN'S long-awaited "big push" in China was believed definitely "on" as the Japanese assumed virtual control of North Hopei, and made important thrusts into the Chinese lines at Shanghai, after the most terrible fighting of a month of undeclared warfare.

At about the same time, the Chinese, heeding at last the advice of German officers generally conceded the "brains" of the central army, began a strategic retreat to the "third area of defense" mapped out by these same officers after the Shanghai conflict of 1932, which was conducted under identical conditions.

Apparently the Chinese plan of retreat was to withdraw defending troops from the range of Japanese naval guns in the Whangpoo and Yangtse rivers. The Chinese were reluctant to leave positions which they claimed had been held against the Japanese invasion, but the German advisers finally won them over to the theory that these positions had been held at a cost far out of proportion to their importance.

The first strategic stage of the Chinese fighting in Shanghai—as planned by the German officers—was to slow down and harass the landing of Japanese reinforcements; the second, to divide the Japanese lines, and the third, to deprive the Japanese of the use of their naval guns.

Realizing what is going on, the Japanese command has ordered rapid advance no matter what the cost, in an effort to change an orderly retreat into a complete rout. As a result, the Japanese for the time being are the heavy losers in men, rather than the Chinese.

No Help for Munitions Ships

ANY American merchant vessels which carry arms or other implements of war to China or Japan will do so at their own risk, President Roosevelt warned shipping concerns. This policy applies to all of the articles listed in his proclamation of May 1, 1937, when he invoked the neutrality act against both parties in the Spanish civil war.

The President's order also forbade any government-owned vessel from carrying war materials to China or Japan. Unless war is declared he has no control over other American shipping, but he warned shippers that if ships carrying such cargo are bombed or attacked they need expect no action on the part of the United States.

Copeland Loses in Primary

TWENTY-ONE arrests were made as violence dogged the polls in New York city's most spirited mayoral primary in years. Senator Royal S. Copeland, who ran for the Republican nomination although he was supported by Tammany Hall, lost the honor to Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia, fusion candidate for reelection. Copeland made his bid for the G. O. P. nod by bitterly opposing President Roosevelt, but the stamp of Tammany precluded his nomination. The Democratic nomination was captured by Jeremiah T. Mahoney, who had the backing of Democratic national chairman James A. Farley.

'Keep Us Out of War'

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, anxious over conditions in Europe and the Far East, cut his vacation short and returned to Washington to discuss developments with his cabinet. After discussing the situation with Norman H. Davis, his European ambassador-at-large, and Bernard M. Baruch, and getting reports from the State department, he was said to be convinced that there was a real possibility of implication of the United States in a foreign war. Baruch called Europe a tinder box, ready to explode at any time.

In an address before an outdoor meeting of Dutchess county (N. Y.) citizens President Roosevelt had said, "World conditions are pretty serious. I am glad to say . . . that we are going to do everything we can in the United States—not only the people of the United States but the government of the United States—to keep us out of war."

Headache for the League

AT GENEVA, the Chinese delegation framed an appeal against Japanese invasion, to be presented to the League of Nations. The appeal, which urged peace-loving members and non-members to join in action against the "aggression," invoked Article 17 of the League covenant, which would invite Japan to sit in on the council of reply.

The Chinese statement charged that since mid-August Japan has thrown 60,000 troops into the Woosung-Shanghai area.

"The intention of Japan . . . cannot otherwise be interpreted than to dominate Shanghai . . . and to attack Nanking, the capital," the statement said. It also declared that the Japanese blockade of the entire Chinese coast was illegal.

Eiji Amau, Japanese minister to Switzerland, made it plain that Japan had no intention of returning to Geneva to sit at any council board that discussed the Far Eastern hostilities. Nippon resigned from the League after it had judged her the aggressor in the invasion of Manchuria in 1933.

$300,000,000 in New Money

SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY MORGENTHAU has agreed to issue $300,000,000 in cash against an equal amount of the treasury's "sterilized" gold. The move was believed to have been made because of recent weakness in the market for government bonds and a 16 per cent decline in the stock market over a period of about four weeks.

In addition, the open market committee of the federal reserve board announced that it had authorized the twelve federal reserve banks to buy additional amounts of short term government securities.

In some quarters, the treasury's move was interpreted as an about face by the administration, reversing its year-old policy of trying to prevent an untimely inflation.

Loyalists Ready to Pay Up

IT WAS reported in Geneva that the Spanish loyalist government and the American government had agreed upon $30,000,000 as a settlement for American claims arising out of the Spanish civil war. This, it was understood, would cover every kind of damage suffered by American business in Spain since the beginning of the war, including confiscation and appropriation of private property for military purposes, as well as material damages.

In voluntarily offering a settlement while the war is still going on, the Valencia government shattered revolutionary traditions. It was believed that the loyalists were anxious to emphasize the fact that they are not the revolutionary government, but the real government of Spain, and consider prompt payment of claims one of the best ways of keeping the respect of other nations.

Czechoslovakia Loses a Saint

THE "little father of Czechoslovakia," Dr. Thomas G. Masaryk, founder of the republic, died in Praha. He was eighty-seven years old.

It was the efforts of Dr. Masaryk in the great capitals of Europe during the World war which made possible the creation of his country. Its people revered him as the symbol of their liberty, the patron saint of freedom. He was their first president, serving first in 1918, and in 1935, with old age coming upon him, he resigned his office to Eduard Benes, his colleague, who was at his bed when he lost the battle against the death he philosophically considered "the common enemy of mankind." He once said: "If it must come I shall at least know I died fighting it."

Nazis Too Busy to Fight

A DOLF HITLER, German dictator, struck what might have been a cheerful note, in conference with foreign government representatives at the Nazi rally in Nuremberg, when he declared that Germany is too busy to become involved in any war. He said that the plans which he and other Nazi leaders have for the country would take from 20 to 40 years to complete, and that war might be disastrous.

On Tiptoe

By
Stewart Edward White

The others followed Davenport to the willow bottom where they all set busily to work cutting poles and dragging them out onto the meadow. Burton hung about them for a while, then wandered away in the direction of Simmins' activities and was seen no more. On in the little meadow the big car quivered under the slow rhythmic impulse of the whirling self-starter, which shrieked its high song. From time to time Grinstead or Gardiner, after dropping a load of poles, would look at it for a few seconds, a growing wonder in their eyes. About midmorning Grinstead said:

"I don't need any four-day test to show me this is a big thing. If it stopped right now, exhausted, played out, it would be a big thing. How much of a fool do you make out this young man is?"

"He's the crazy up-in-the-air gambling kind of a fool," replied Gardiner contemptuously.

"About ten thousand dollars' worth, hey, Ross?" grinned the Chief. "But I get you."

When the sun was overhead Davenport called a halt and they all went to the stream's edge to wash and cool off. Grinstead eyed the rushing waters critically.

"By George, she looks to me as though she were going down!" he cried hopefully. "Wouldn't you say that the water is clearing, Davenport?"

"Undoubtedly," encouraged the young man, "but if I were you I'd stick to worms or a spinner just for today."

"I'm going to," assured Grinstead; "some of these thirty-three degree cranks won't fish with anything but a fly, but who am I to deny an honest trout what he wants?"

They returned to camp. Simmins had really done remarkably well. He was an adaptable, an observant creature, and he had watched Davenport minutely the day before. A certain faint pride might have been discovered in him by a closely observant bystander. A blatant, flushed, unashamed pride could not fail to be remarked on the glowing countenance of Burton. The cause of that was not apparent until Simmins, bringing the camp kettles to the edge of the spread tarpaulin, announced in reply to a careless compliment:

"No, sir; not I, sir. Miss Burton did the cooking, sir."

Davenport merely smiled at her with a vague commendation. But if the kettles had exploded like so many trench mortars the effect on Grinstead could not have been more devastating. His eyes popped, his mouth opened, his breath came quickly.

"You'll have apoplexy, dad," cried Burton impatiently. "Try it; it isn't as bad as all that."

Grinstead subsided and helped himself; but he continued to shake his head and mutter, and from time to time he was seen to examine closely the food and to sniff at it in a manner that brought a bright flush to his daughter's cheeks.

"By Jove," Davenport was saying, "it certainly is a comfort to come in off work and find a meal waiting for you instead of having to turn in and rustle it yourself. You're a public benefactor, Miss Burton."

She looked at him gratefully. "I'm afraid it isn't very good," she confessed, "but I did the best I could. Simmins"—she flashed a glance of scorn at that individual—"claims he knows nothing about cooking."

"Nothing whatever, miss," corroborated Simmins firmly.

"Indeed?" commented Davenport. "Well, we'll teach him. Nothing like a knowledge of open-air cooking for an accomplishment, Simmins. Very valuable to you."

"Yes, sir," murmured Simmins, crushed.

"Open-air cookery," pursued Davenport largely, as though dealing in generalities, "is quite a trick in itself. The best cooks on a stove have practically to begin all over again. There are little tricks about it that you can get only with experience. Hot fire, and currents of air and all that sort of thing. Now, take rice." He waved an explanatory spoon. "Seems as if the dumb stuff would stick to the bottom and burn or else come out watery. Yet it's very simple."

"Drat the rice!" interrupted Burton with heartfelt fervency. "That's what happened to mine—both!"

"Well, next time try this: Take just four cupfuls of salted water. When it is boiling hard put in a cupful of rice. At once clap on the cover and put a good big rock on top. Leave it for exactly twenty-two minutes; not a minute more or less. Then it's done. There'll be no water left; the rice will be soft and plump, and it won't be burned."

"Don't you stir it?" asked Burton.

"No. The confined steam does that."

"I should think—"

"I've done it hundreds of times. It works," he assured her smilingly. "There are a lot of little kinks like that; and they are quite interesting."

Stick around when I undertake Simmins' education."

"I will," she cried gayly. She was deeply grateful for the tactful manner with which the young man had relieved the situation. None of her acquaintance could have done it better. Burton confessed to a growing interest and respect in the capabilities of a self-made young garage mechanic. She had always looked on them as probably skillful, but rather coarse and ignorant, and certainly dirty. That was as far as she had gone.

The meal finished, Grinstead was all eagerness to be off. Davenport advised some large pools near the break of land, which he would find down stream a mile or so. He departed sturdily. Gardiner said he thought he would take a snooze on the boughs at the other camp. Davenport drew Simmins aside and conversed with him low-voiced for a while; in consequence of which, after the dishes had been washed, Simmins also retired to the old camp.

The two young people plunged into the forest, Davenport leading the way. Rapsallion cut wide, interrogatory circles around them. Punketty-Snivvies attempted to follow, but was sternly ordered back. The inextinguishable web of cause and effect we call chance decreed that Gardiner should be standing nearest; that upon Gardiner's unenthusiastic care Punketty-Snivvies should be bestowed by Burton. After they had resumed their walk they could hear the little beast's shrill, yapping protest, as nagging to the nerves as the reiterated cry of the fever owl in the African jungle. The yapping suddenly ended by a squeak of anguish. Punketty-Snivvies had been well swatted, and that swat had added Gardiner to his list of enemies. In the slow revolving of the incidents and accidents that make up our story this enmity had important results. Punketty-Snivvies was a true Bourbon in that he never learned and never forgot.

Davenport led the way skillfully on ever-rising ground, following the faint, mossy half-trace of what was a water course only when rain was actually falling. It afforded comparatively clear footing through the lofty bracken, dogwood and smaller thicket which spread beneath the redwood giants like a carpet with a nap ten feet high! The sun, searching in turn with its slanting shafts and arrows every aisle and pocket of the forest, had thoroughly warmed the air.

Shortly the hill rose more steeply, and here was a patch of the gorgeous rhododendrons they had come to see. Bees hummed and hesitated over the wild flowers. They sat on the ground, leaning against one of the ancient stumps.

"Tell me about yourself," she interjected suddenly into a desultory speculation as to the man who had planted the apple trees.

"I was born of poor but honest parents—"

"No! No! Please don't be silly! I want to know."

"What particularly, oh Lady?"

"I want to know how you knew so accurately about the rain and the tree falling and all the rest of that. And I want to know about the battery and how you came to make it. It was something the same thing, wasn't it?"

He stared at her.

"Why do you say that?" he asked at last.

"I don't know; I feel it. Please tell me; I do want to know."

He hesitated a moment; then abruptly took his decision.

"I'll try," he promised, "but I don't know very clearly myself. I've never tried to express it."

He hesitated again, seeking for an opening.

"Did you ever read Maeterlinck's 'Life of the Bee'?" he inquired. "Or any of Fabre's insect books?"

"I've read the 'Bee' and one of Fabre's—the one where the Emperor moth—"

"Yes, I know. Well, that gives us a start. Now bees, and especially ants, have what you might call a co-operative government that is as complicated and a lot more intelligent and efficient than any human government I'm just taking them as a sample; the same thing applies all through nature. Creatures work, inside their own needs, with an intelligence that beats ours a calendar mile. Some times, as in the case of the ant and the bee, it is a very complicated in-crust.

"Open-air cookery," pursued Davenport largely, as though dealing in generalities, "is quite a trick in itself. The best cooks on a stove have practically to begin all over again. There are little tricks about it that you can get only with experience. Hot fire, and currents of air and all that sort of thing. Now, take rice." He waved an explanatory spoon. "Seems as if the dumb stuff would stick to the bottom and burn or else come out watery. Yet it's very simple."

"Drat the rice!" interrupted Burton with heartfelt fervency. "That's what happened to mine—both!"

"Well, next time try this: Take just four cupfuls of salted water. When it is boiling hard put in a cupful of rice. At once clap on the cover and put a good big rock on top. Leave it for exactly twenty-two minutes; not a minute more or less. Then it's done. There'll be no water left; the rice will be soft and plump, and it won't be burned."

"Don't you stir it?" asked Burton.

"No. The confined steam does that."

"I should think—"

"I've done it hundreds of times. It works," he assured her smilingly. "There are a lot of little kinks like that; and they are quite interesting."

"Yet He Acts With a Heap More In Intelligence Than Most Men Do."

telligence. If a man were required to sit down and plan out on paper all the political ramifications of a system of government like the ant's he would have to be possessed of a very high degree of brain power, and he'd have to use it. How come?"

"Instinct?" replied Burton promptly.

"Sure thing. But that just sticks in a word as a stop-gap. No, get down and look at it closely. You would hardly go so far as to say that an ant is an intellectual creature; that he, or any of his ancestors or fellows, has a brain that could think out and put in operation a system of government. Yet he acts with a heap more intelligence than most men do—on the average. How come?"

"I don't know."

FIRST SIX WEEKS IN EIGHT ACTS

For the first two days after chicks are hatched the temperature should be kept at 90 to 92 degrees, and gradually reduced to 80 or 85 degrees by the end of the second week. The tendency of chicks to pile and crowd is usually due to a too-high or too-low temperature or a variation in temperature.

The brooder house should be thoroughly cleaned and disinfected with a solution of creso-fec before chicks are put into it. Peat moss, shavings, or chaff removed are excellent for litter. When the chicks are first put down the litter should be covered with burlap or several thicknesses of rough paper.

A circle of wire covered with burlap or cotton sacks should be set up around the house where the heat is.

The ordinary brooder house will handle from 250 to 300 chicks. A costly mistake is that of trying to raise more chicks than can be properly cared for. If a portable house is used it should be moved to fresh ground and cleaned and aired before chicks are put into it.

Plenty of fresh water is essential. The chick should be removed, and to aid in the prevention of disease and spread of infection, one-quarter level teaspoon of chlora powder should be added to each gallon. (Or one measuring spoon to every 10 gallons of water.) Drinking troughs should be kept clean. Washing them in a solution of Purina chlora is a safe method of preventing spread of disease through the fountains.

As chicks grow older they need more air but drafts should never be allowed to blow on them. Chicks chill easily and need plenty of warmth the first few weeks.

One of the best ways to prevent crowding and piling is to provide low slatted roosts in the brooder house early and have chicks begin using them at three weeks. A roosting frame made of 1" by 2" material cut to the full length or width of the brooder house can be hinged to the wall at a height of 8 to 10 inches. It can be folded back against the wall when not in use.

During the first six weeks chicks need the best starting food obtainable. By all means it should be fortified with puratene, that rich pro-vitamin A concentrate that gives extra vigor and vitality to chicks. The starting feed should also contain cod liver oil of proven quality. The soundest method of determining quality in cod liver oil is by feeding it to rats and chicks in actual laboratory tests. Inclusion of high quality oil in the starting feed protects chicks against rickets.

The starting feed should also be made up of ingredients that have been blended scientifically. Almost anyone can put two or more ingredients together to form a mash . . . but it requires years of scientific study to determine which ingredients should be included and in what amounts to get maximum growth, strong and sturdy legs, and deep yellow pigmentation in chicks.

whose rates are already subject to stringent public regulation; That it would study the rail transportation system from the standpoint of encouraging, rather than hamstringing the American railroads, as is now being done insidiously by those who would socialize the carriers under government ownership.

Just suppose our government would announce such a program instead of coming forth with new and untried experiments threatening to property rights, personal liberties, investments and employment.

Do you think business would pick up this country, money start to flow into new enterprises, and new jobs be created? Think it over.—Industrial News Review.

IF YOUR HOUSE CATCHES FIRE.

If your house catches fire—keep your head. Follow a simple but vital routine and your chance of escaping safely will be tremendously increased. Succumb to panic and thoughtless activity and your next stop may be the hospital or the morgue.

Writing in McCall's, John J. McElligott, New York Fire Chief, points out that two-thirds of our annual fire deaths occur in dwellings, mainly because the occupants don't know how to get out. And three-fourths of these victims are trapped on top floors, because they fail to recognize the danger signals of heat and pressure on bedroom doors.

The first thing the household should do if awakened by fire, is to feel the bedroom door panel. If the wood is hot, don't open the door unless you want to sign your death warrant. If there is an exit via a window or roof, take it. If not stay in the room with the door closed and call for help.

If the door is relatively cool, open it an inch, with your body braced against it so it can be instantly slammed if a rush of hot air follows the opening. If the heat outside is bearable, move with the utmost speed. Don't try to save belongings. Fire travels a thousand times faster than the uninitiated realize. A stairway that is passable one minute, may be a roaring inferno the next. And once you're outside—stay out! Many a life has been lost because someone rushed back inside a burning building.

Chief McElligott recommends that every family hold periodic fire drills, especially if there are children. The experience these drills provide may be a life-saver if fire eventually breaks out—a mind and body trained in the technique of escaping a burning building, are not so susceptible to the deadly delay and panic.—Industrial News Review.

CAUGHT SHORT.

The statement that the American people are faced with a railway crisis is not mere rhetoric. It is an ominously evident fact.

With the expectancy of a heavy increase in passenger and freight business during 1937, the I. C. C. shaved railroad freight rates 4.6 per cent. The "boom" did not materialize, but rising operating costs did. Prices of railway equipment, material and fuel have increased about 12 per cent within the last year, adding $125,000,000 annually to railway costs. In addition, 1937 wage increases thus far to the non-rail service employees (the lower paid workmen) amount to approximately $98,000,000 annually. If the present demand of railroad train service employees (the highest paid railroad labor in the world) for a 20 per cent wage increase is successful, it will mean another annual expenditure of $116,000,000. Finally, the bill now pending in Congress, and which has Senate approval, would limit the length of freight trains to 70 cars, and add still another $150,000,000 to annual railroad operating expenses.

Faced with falling revenues on one hand and rapidly rising costs on the other, the American railroads will suffer crippling losses and the public will suffer from impaired transportation service, if something is not done immediately to balance railroad outgo and income. Not only should threatened losses be avoided, but the railroads should be permitted rates to earn a reasonable return on property investment, over and above necessary operating expenses.

If the railroads are ever to be allowed to accumulate reserves with which to meet the next depression, it should be now, when business is above depression lows.—Industrial News Review.

A CRAFT EXPOSED.

The Chamber of Commerce here is in receipt of a letter from State Highway Engineer Gibb Gilchrist from which we quote:

I thought you might be interested in having a copy of a resolution adopted by the Executive Committee of the American Association of State Highway Officials at a recent meeting. Some solicitors have been going out to our people in Texas raising money and claiming to have certain powers to secure U. S. Highways. This is not the case and any money so granted is thrown away and you are advised not to contribute to or sponsor any such movement.

U. S. Highways are only granted on the application of the State Highway Commission to the Executive Committee of the American Association of State Highway Officials.

The resolution above referred to sets out:

1. That the laying out of the U. S. Highway System is proceeding along a well defined policy.

The "typical motorist" in the United States, according to the American Petroleum Industries Committee, is a man who—

1. Earns $25 to $30 a week;
2. Owns a car valued at $200 or less;

5. Has never owned a new car;
6. Sees $8 of his annual automobile taxes mis-spent for non-highway purposes.

"Do you mean to say you can't read those large letters?" he asked.

"I can read the blamed things all right," replied the patient a little testily, "but I'm hanged if I can pronounce Russian."

TOMATO VARIETY AND FERTILIZER TRIALS THE 1936 FALL CROP.

Final results of the 1936 fall tomato experiments at the Winter Garden Experiment Station followed the trends indicated on the tomato field day in November, according to data recently summarized by L. H. Hawthorn, horticulturist in charge of the experiment. In the trial of 46 varieties, marketable yields from strains of Bonny Best were two to three times greater than those from various strains of Marglobe. Still higher yields were obtained from some excellent strains of John Baer and Chalk's Jewel, two varieties of the Bonny Best type, and one variety synonymous with it by some authorities.

Among the new varieties, Groth's Globe showed the most promise. The fruit is a globe shape, red colored when fully ripe, with thick walls, and a good firm interior. Although as good a shipper and most productive than Marglobe, it does not equal Bonny Best in producing Globe, recently developed by the operation of the United States Department of Agriculture and the Florida Experiment Station, showed up well, too, approximating Groth's Globe in productivity. It is a fine globe shaped tomato, but is pink in color, and tends to puff badly.

In the fertilizer tests the treatments receiving mixtures of both nitrogen and phosphoric acid all yielded better than those receiving phosphoric acid (superphosphate) only. An application of 200 pounds per acre of a 6-18-0 fertilizer was the most profitable of this series, resulting in 7988 pounds of marketable fruit per acre as compared with only 2936 pounds from the unfertilized plots. The treatment receiving 400 pounds of 0-18-0 yielded 6222 pounds of marketable fruit per acre. The experiment indicated that adequate but moderate applications of fertilizer pay good dividends. Large applications of fertilizer increased yields only slightly more.

In an experiment in which 18, 32 and 45 percent superphosphates were applied at rates to give exactly the same amount of phosphoric acid in each case, there was very little difference in the results from the different treatments. However, some other plots receiving the 11-45-0 fertilizer at the rate of 150 pounds per acre (to give exactly the same amount of phosphoric acid as in the other three treatments), yielded 8489 pounds of marketable fruit per acre or approximately 2000 pounds per acre more than any of the other three treatments.
